
Murphy Company Promotes Fuller to Information Systems Manager

ST. LOUIS – David Fuller has been promoted to information systems manager at Murphy Company. Rob Koester, CFO, made the announcement.

“David has played a key role within the MIS group for more than 11 years, during which he has expanded his knowledge of our business and been vital in implementing several key business software applications,” said Koester. “This promotion is much deserved.”

Koester added that Fuller was instrumental in implementing accounts payable document imaging, project manager workflow on Murphy’s Intranet, sheet metal material and productivity tracking, and a variety of data analysis and reporting tools. In his new position, he manages the design, maintenance and development of business software application solutions.

Fuller attended the University of Missouri at Rolla, where he studied computer science. He also studied management of information systems at Columbia College.
